In Trouble.

Robert Alexander, better known as "Bob Gray," had his examining trial before Mayor January, Tuesday afternoon, under a charge of grand larceny and was held to bail in the sum of $100, for his appearance before the next grand jury. He is charged with stealing a $50 Treasury note from the store of Frank Phister, on last Thursday night. Marshal Fitzgerald cornered Bob, Saturday night, and recovered the money. It was developed on the examination that he left the money at J. C. Pecor & Co's., drug store the morning after it was missed by Mr. Phister, with the statement that he had found it on the fair grounds. This is Bob's first offense, we believe, and it is to be regretted as he was much liked and trusted by all who have heretofore employed him.

Squire J. D. Raymond held court here last Friday, had a large docket and quite an array of legal talent present from Maysville and many knotty cases disposed of. Maysville had a very interesting case.

There is a disease now prevailing among milch cows in this section and many cases prove fatal.

James Hendrixson will redeem his promise this fall by giving the Stonewall House in this place a thorough painting. We look for a good job.

The State of Lewis at Large.

A brilliant golden wedding of Daniel Kenyon was celebrated on Friday September 22, 1882. Daniel Kenyon married Rebecca Zorns, September 22, 1832, at Forman's Bottom, Lewis county, Ky., and commenced his married life on the spot where his fine mansion and attractive grounds, the most beautiful homestead on the Ohio river, now stands. It was a marriage of Lewis and Adams counties that has been unbroken in fifty years. Two hundred invitations were issued, one hundred and fifty answered numbering old settlers and friends who made this one of the most memorable gatherings ever assembled in the Irish Bottom. The gifts were numerous but small in golden drops from gold quarters to $10, donated by families. Mr. Kenyon requested that the presents be omitted as he has abundance. But old friends would bring something and young friends insisted in uniting on a memento. So the table presented a charming show that made the old christian bride and groom weep for joy. The ceremony opened with a welcome address by Mr. Kenyon concluding with an original poem of his own composition. Fine tables loaded with the fat and fruits of the land, the grand children serving the old, Mrs. Moore ninety years old, mother of Capt. E. B. Moore of the Bonanza, headed the table with the venerable bride and groom next. After a sumptuous feast seats were provided in the front under the pines and from the venerable mayor Chambers Baird, of Ripley, a school mate of Mr. Kenyon, and born on an adjacent farm addressed his old associates for over an hour giving the early history of the valley reminiscences of his boyhood associations. But when the Mayor named several of the school mates he would fill up, then when he touched on his father and mother he gave down. It was then suggested he tell about the old mill school house and the tricks he and Dan played made a happy conclusion. Music followed, ice cream and cake, when according to the programme, W. S. Rand took up the life and character, trials and disappointments of the old folks, and finally the christian life and happy home, the reward of industry perseverance and honest dealings. Rev. Mr. Adams, another old friend spoke with much feeling of this golden wedding as one of God's rare blessings seldom enjoyed by mankind.

Died—Aunt Bell, a colored woman, formerly the slave of Gen. Marshall for fifty years the intimate servant of Samuel Stevenson's family died near Concord, in her eighty-fifth year. Aunt Bell was a pure African, and an expert in the culinary art, a genius in the preparation of fruits, and useful in every department of household work, her inclinations were to live to be useful and associate with white people and to talk of old Virginia and the distinguished persons. She served as maid, cook and housekeeper, she enjoyed the confidence of all the Stevensons, and was provided for in every way. She died suddenly and was buried with distinguished consideration, all the old white citizens and colored attended the funeral services by Elder Jones. The remains were buried in the Stevensons' family lot at Concord.
